

Inspiration

What's the strangest interview you've ever been on? Mine involved flippers and a massive dry-cleaning bill. To earn a few extra euros I had to pick up a side gig during my semester abroad along the western coast of Italy. They told me to wear a suit to the interview – so I put on my best three-piece and headed to the address. I didn't realize until I got there that they meant wetsuit. Probably should have thought about that considering it was for a snorkeling instructor. Still got the job.
